Kanbrick Announces Participants for Spring 2023 Build with Kanbrick Cohort

Flagship program builds upon strong foundation of first four successful cohorts and totaling over 275 applicants

Kanbrick, the long-term investment partnership co-founded by Tracy Britt Cool and Brian Humphrey, today announced participants for the fifth cohort of Build with Kanbrick. With over 80 applicants for spring 2023, five companies were selected to take part in the free program designed to help midsize companies realize their full potential and accelerate long term growth.

Since starting the program in 2021, Kanbrick has worked closely with 25 CEOs and Founders in a combination of collaborative group sessions and individual deep dive discussions over the course of the three-month program. In addition to having access to the Kanbrick team and broader network of alumni and Kanbrick Community CEOs, participants also have access to exclusive templates, tools, and resources to help them grow their businesses.

The Build with Kanbrick program is rooted in the Kanbrick Business System, the value creation playbook Britt Cool and Humphrey developed through years of building and growing great companies.

“Mid-size companies are the backbone of the American economy, and we are excited to partner with these strong leaders as they continue to grow and build their companies,” said Britt Cool. “Our growing group of alumni continues to be a valuable aspect of our Kanbrick Community of business leaders who want to learn and grow together.”

The companies and leaders participating in the Spring 2023 Build with Kanbrick program are:

Hindman Auctions – Chicago, IL

Spring 2023 Participant Bios:

Alyssa Quinlan

CEO, Hindman Auctions

Chicago, IL

<https://hindmanauctions.com/>

<https://www.linkedin.com/in/alyssaquinlan/>

Alyssa D. Quinlan is CEO of Hindman Auctions, overseeing strategy and day-to-day operations for Hindman, as well as the firm's ongoing expansion in locations, services and expertise. She has 25 years of diversified business experience, with leadership experience in private banking and wealth management in addition to fine art auction and appraisal services. She led business development and Trusts & Estates at Leslie Hindman Auctioneers from 2003 to 2010, before joining J.P. Morgan to work with clients in the firm's private banking division. In 2016, she moved to international appraisal firm Gurr Johns, where she oversaw the opening of the Chicago branch and contributed to the expansion of the company's presence throughout the Midwest and Texas.

Since returning to Hindman in 2019 as Chief Business Development Officer, Quinlan has renewed her commitment to auctioneering —a skill she first learned from her mentor Leslie Hindman. As a sought-after charity auctioneer, she has helped to raise funds for The Salvation Army and Rush University Woman's Board. She is an active member of Chief, the professional network for women executive leaders, and supports arts and cultural organizations in her hometown of Chicago, including the Museum of Contemporary Art, the Luminarts Cultural Foundation, and the Women's Board of Ravinia. She holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from DePauw University

Greg Molter

Managing Director, Alpha Resources

Stevensville, Michigan

<https://www.alpharesources.com/>

<https://www.linkedin.com/in/gregory-molter-35557a8/>

Greg has been Managing Director of Alpha Resources since 2011. Originally founded by Greg's stepfather, Alpha Resources is a global leader in the manufacture and distribution of consumables and creation of certified reference materials for use in elemental combustion analysis.

During his time with Alpha Resources, Greg negotiated and closed 11 deals on the company's behalf. The cumulation of those deals is the creation of Alchemy Analytical Group, a set of consolidated shareholders invested in multiple businesses which service and manufacture products for the spectrometry analysis field. Working within this group has allowed Greg to identify and execute significant cost savings through business synergies while increasing organic sales growth across the group.

Building businesses is in Greg's DNA. In addition to his stepfather, Greg's mother is also an entrepreneur in the restaurant field. Over the 9 years he supported that business with his expertise, he successfully quadrupled the sales of the business and improved every KPI from EBITDA to customer service and operational execution.

Greg holds an undergraduate from Michigan State University in Accounting, an MBA from the Booth School of Business at the University of Chicago and has attended an executive program at Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management. Prior to joining the family businesses, Greg has worked as a Senior Consultant with Arthur Anderson, Assistant Vice President with Credit Agricole d'Ile-d-France, and Vice President of Morgan Stanley.

In his spare time, Greg enjoys playing with his three dogs, building Lego sets, traveling with his wife, and spending time with his kids. (His son is currently pitching entrepreneurial ideas to Dad.) He also dabbles in commercial and residential real estate.
